News: CBNHC now has the Omicron booster shot and will begin administering shots by appointment. Fewer than 70,000 coronavirus cases are currently announced each day in the United States, the lowest level seen since early May. Cases are flat or falling in nearly every state, and in many places, the declines are significant. More than a dozen states and territories have seen cases decrease by 40 percent or more since the start of the month. Hospitalizations have also seen sustained improvement. Fewer than 35,000 people are currently in American hospitals with the coronavirus each day, a decrease of 11 percent over the past two weeks. Data on new virus deaths is volatile at the moment because of the lingering effects of Labor Day weekend, when many states did not report. Still, deaths today are far lower than they were a year ago, when the Delta variant was causing nearly 2,000 deaths per day.
